

The International Centre for Evidence in Disability is pleased to announce our free online course on Global Disability: Research and Evidence launching on 30th November!

Over this 3 week course, we will learn from persons with disabilities, researchers, including researchers with disabilities, and policy makers as we look to enhance our understanding of the importance of evidence, and how research can be conducted, interpreted and used to inform policy and practice.

By the end of the course learners will be able to:

- Explain the concept of disability
- Summarise how disability can be measured
- Explore how to interpret and critically appraise evidence on disability with a range of study designs
- Discuss important ethical considerations for conducting research with people with disabilities
- Identify how to meaningfully include people with disabilities throughout the research process
- Investigate how research evidence can be used to inform policy and practice

There are around 4 hours of study each week.

Register here to join the course for free: <https://www.futurelearn.com/courses/global-disability-research-and-evidence>